

Jane Landers is the Gertrude Conaway Vanderbilt Professor of History and Director of the Slave Societies Digital Archive at Vanderbilt University that preserves the oldest and largest collection of historical documents for Africans in the Atlantic World.

Since 2015 she has served as the U.S. member on UNESCO's International Scientific Committee for the Routes of Enslaved Peoples which designated Gracia Real de Santa Teresa de Mose as a Site of Memory.

Her award-winning monographs include Black Society in Spanish Florida and Atlantic Creoles in the Age of Revolutions and she is the co-author or editor of five other books. She has also published more than seventy journal articles and book chapters dealing with the history of Africans in Florida and in the Atlantic World. She lectures regularly at professional and public venues and contributes to museum, documentary, and curricular projects on this history.

Her research has been supported by the Historical St. Augustine Research Institute, the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation, the National Endowment for the Humanities, the American Council of Learned Societies, and the Gilder Lehrman Center for the Study of Slavery, Resistance, and Abolition, among others.

Landers currently serves on the editorial boards of the William & Mary Quarterly, the Cambridge History of the Caribbean, Carolina Lowcountry and the Atlantic World, d Perspectivas Afro, Esclavages & post-esclavages, Atlantic World, and Slavery & Abolition.

She has served in executive positions for a variety of historical organizations including the American Historical Association, the Conference on Latin American History, the Forum on European Expansion and Global Interaction (now the Forum on Early-Modern Empires & Global Interaction), the Southern Historical Association and the Omohundro Institute of Early American History & Culture.